When I decided to jump into the business marketplace I knew I'd need a strong logo and web presence. After looking at many different webpage styles, sites and designers I decided to work with Kris at Halftone Pixel Website Design and Consulting. After looking through the portfolio Kris has produced I knew I'd be in good hands.

Being the type of person that is used to being in control of most aspects of my business, I had some reservations about handing over an idea, and allowing someone else to take that idea and turn it into a reality. At the start of the project I had a lot of questions. But before I got around to asking the questions, Kris was usually updating me with the answers.

When presented with the Logo and Website Mock Up review I was given ample time and opportunity to make any changes I wanted. But in most cases little or no changes were required. It seemed as if Kris designed and created the website through my own eyes. The finished project was outstanding and turned out better than I ever expected.

I'd highly recommend Halftone Pixel Website Design and Consulting to all of my friends and business associates. The work was completed on schedule, on budget, and with panache and distinction. Kris truly is a technological artist.
